VirnetX Prevails at Federal Appeals Court as Apple’s Requests for Rehearings are Denied

En Banc and Panel Rehearing Requests Denied

ZEPHYR COVE, Nevada.– February 11, 2020 – VirnetX™ Holding Corporation (NYSE AMERICAN: VHC), an Internet security software and technology company, announced today that the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (the “Federal Circuit”) issued an order denying Apple’s petition for panel and en banc rehearing of the decision issued in Appeal No. 2019-1050. Previously, in the appeal, the Federal Circuit affirmed-in-part and reversed-in-part a judgment issued against Apple by the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Texas.

In its opinion in this case, the Federal Circuit affirmed the district court’s ruling that Apple was precluded from challenging the validity of the asserted patents. Apple, the Court held, had unsuccessfully litigated the same issues in a previous case, and was barred from reprising those challenges. The Federal Circuit also affirmed the jury’s finding that Apple’s VPN-on-Demand feature infringes U.S. Patent Nos. 6,502,135 and 7,490,151. The Federal Circuit reversed, however, the finding that Apple’s FaceTime feature infringes U.S. Patent Nos. 7,418,504 and 7,921,211.

The Federal Circuit’s opinion remanded the case to the district court for an assessment of whether a new trial was required on damages, given the reversal of the infringement finding as to FaceTime. The Court noted, however, that Apple had sold about 418 million units, including “over 384 million units having both FaceTime and VPN on Demand,” and “34 million units having only FaceTime.”

“We are extremely pleased with the Federal Court’s decision to deny Apple’s requests for an en banc and panel rehearing,” said Kendall Larsen, VirnetX CEO and President.
